Plans for Roosevelt Center and Metro Station are Discussed by City Council

by Sid Kastner

At the regular city council meeting of October 5, several items touching on uses or treatment of parkland within the Greenbelt area were considered. The tracts in question lie as close as Braden Field and as far away as the Baltimore and Ohio (B&O) railroad tracks at the western edge of the incorporated city of Greenbelt. The impact of increased automobile traffic and parking on the Roosevelt Center/Braden Field complex was a major topic of concern.

Center Plans and Parking

In the continuing process toward renovation of Roosevelt Center Mall and construction of associated facilities such as the new indoor swimming pool, the parking situation has been under study by an architectural design firm, hired by the city, which has been assigned to develop a "master plan" for the Center. Several aspects of planning have been considered, with parking and traffic flow being an important component. Thus reconsideration of parking arrangements in the four areas at the Center - the west parking lot next to the municipal building, the east parking lot on the Parkway side, the rear lot behind the post office and the Centerway spaces - has been the first design goal undertaken.

As the staff memorandum pointed out, "the existing circulation pattern is not clear in some places" and "vehicular and pedestrian traffic conflicts occur." The contracting firm has come up with two alternative plans for upgrading the parking areas. Both expand parking to 400 spaces from the present 353, and both change the present angled parking to perpendicular parking. They differ in that one would retain the north/south aisles while the other would change their orientation to east/west. Both would however require demolition and reconstruction of the present aisles which are too narrow to support landscaping.

Both schemes include an access road past the Candy Cane children's playground, to the east of the new indoor swimming pool (which will be built adjacent to the outdoor swimming pool); and additional parking is proposed between the new pool and Braden Field. The one-side only parking on Centerway would be retained.

Consideration of these parking schemes however raised a number of other related issues. City manager James K. Giese, speaking for the staff recommended that council set up a work session on this. Council member Thomas X. White went further in suggesting a public hearing to get input "on the Centerway . . . so that it's not a piecemeal approach." Council member Antoinette M. Bram supported this "to get moving on the sidewalks", and council members Joe Isaacs and Ed Putens pressed for speedier action in the planning process.

City planner Celia Wilson noted that the city has not been working with the design firm for two and a half months, and "there are several matters that have to be endorsed by council before planning can proceed." She suggested that the viewpoints of staff, council and the Advisory Planning Board could be incorporated into an (acceptable) master plan which could be endorsed by council and the public, but estimated it would take at least six weeks to complete. She agreed however that the parking design could be considered before the Mall plan "to speed things up," and noted that the contracting firm needed direction soon to save time and money.

As discussion of the status of the over-all Center planning proceeded between council members and staff personnel, it became evident that action was required. A motion by White was accordingly passed to hold a public hearing "on the traffic circulation and parking arrangements" for Roosevelt Center.

Greenbelt Metro Station

The city had earlier acquired a 1.9 acre strip of land next to the B&O railroad tracks, just south of the Capital Beltway, either for use by the Greenbelt Metro Station or as parkland in

Proposed GHI Budget Tops $5 Million

by Mavis Fletcher

The board of directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. began its annual budget process at the meeting of October 8. GHI Manager Ron Colton presented a first draft of the proposed 1988 budget to the board at the meeting and Comptroller Don McGinn went through the various budget categories answering board members' questions as he went.

The proposed budget totals $5,107,372, up from $4,864,159 in 1987. According to McGinn's presentation, the increase stems in part from increases in budget items over which GHI has no control: real estate taxes, trash collection, and insurance. Overall, the draft budget proposal foresees an increase in the operating budget of 7.74 percent; charges to members are estimated to be increased by less than 5 percent.

Colton said he hoped that the discussion of maintenance this year would focus on the unmet needs of the GHI infrastructure - sewers and parking lots, for example. What is needed, he said, is a middle range (5-8 years) planning tool to meet the cooperative's needs. He noted what he called "a basic dilemma" in the maintenance budget: several long-range programs have been put on a pay-as-you-go basis and most of them go on until 1988 or 1989, thus limiting the flexibility the corporation has in undertaking new maintenance programs during that period.

Colton also pointed out that increases in the maintenance budget will not be offset by unused money left in the 1987 budget (as was the case last year) since the storm damage used up all such maintenance funds this year. Nevertheless, he outlined a few new maintenance programs, among them a 5-year cycle of trim painting and a 3-year cycle of tree replacement.

Colton discussed some personnel benefits he intends to recommend; among them was a 3 percent cost of living raise, payment of the full cost of health insurance by the corporation (the employee currently pays about 35% of the cost), and possibly a long-term disability plan for employees.

Director Chuck Hess noted that GHI had been giving cost of living raises commensurate with those given by other area employers and, at the same time, providing significant fringe benefit increases. He suggested that the board might want to "look at compensation as a whole" before approving any new benefits.

Budget Hearings

The budget will be presented to the board for the second time at the meeting on October 22. Presentation to the members is scheduled for Tuesday, October 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the city council chamber in the municipal building. If this schedule is successfully met, the third and fourth presentations to the board (first and second readings) will be on November 5 and 19.

Pet Regulations

The board had decided at an earlier meeting to review the regulations governing pets in GHI homes. Colton said that about 30% of the complaints which the Member Services Department receives pertain to pets. Most of them are resolved or simply go away; some end up before the Member Complaints Panel.

The staff review of the regulations found that the regulations are basically sound; Colton suggested that the board might want to consider two actions: limiting

Zany Comedy a Hit at Utopia

by Barbara Likowski

"You Can't Take It With You", an adaptation of the Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman play currently running at the Utopia Theater, is a play for the entire family. The children won't understand it all but they'll laugh along with everyone else.

It would be easy to find things to criticize about the play because it is outdated, implausible, somewhat amateurish, zany . . . but it's terribly funny. And therein lies its charm. We look and listen and one part of us knows this is ridiculous. But we go on laughing and are temporarily convinced that such things can be, that a family and their friends can stop working and enjoy life at a slower pace, doing what they like to do best. All of the actors are individualists playing their parts to the hilt, some overdoing it but all together creating a wholeness that carries the story along—the story of two young lovers, one from this zany household, the other from a more orthodox background and their attempt to join the two.

This is definitely a period piece (1937, the time when Greenbelt was beginning), . . . the furniture, the clothes, the outdated way of talking, the racism and anti-feminism. . . . But we wouldn't change it a bit. That's the way things were in those days.

It is grandpa, Martin Vanderhof, who holds the story together. Bill Blanchard does not let us down in his portrayal of the head of the family who quit work one day and decided to enjoy life because "you can't take it with you." He's calm, opinionated and every bit the friendly despot who decides everything from what to have for dinner to whether it's a good time for his niece and her husband to have a baby.

With her hair falling out from her hairdo and her absorption in her writing, Sunday Wynkoop as Penny Sycamore seems every bit the individualist, a painter turned writer continually changing the plays she is working on but never finishing any of them. Yet when it comes to her daughter, she's every bit a 'mom', eager to see her daughter married . . . in love with love.

Her husband and their friend Mr. DiPinna played aptly by Mike Visconage and Loren Ziller, set off the fireworks—and here we will say no more lest we give too much away. They're two big boys playing with their toys. Kristin Young and Walter Braun do a credible job of portraying the young lovers, Alice and Tony, starry-eyed, absorbed in one another, sure that they can overcome the differences in their very different families.

However, it is Anita Beamon and Rhoden Skyles III as the servant Rheba and her boyfriend Donald, who steal the show. Beamon makes every minute on stage count. Her body language tells much more than words could, when she is happy, mad, in love. Her eyes shine, she dances when she walks and a toss of her head is enough to let us know her disdain.

Who can forget Donald wearing Rheba's negligee coming into the living room in the wee hours and stopping to visit with the young lovers who are too polite to ask him to leave?

Every member of the cast has his/her particular peculiar attraction to the audience. Alice's sister, Essie, the frustrated serious ballerina, keeps us watching fascinated as she constantly practices her ballet steps and splits, showing us what an amateur she really is. How does she manage to keep it up so long?

Jeff Gardner, as her husband, Ed, has a difficult part to make believable, but when he and Essie moon over one another and play their silent hand games, oblivious to everyone else, we find ourselves staring, laughing, even giggling.

Then there is the supporting cast—Tony's mother's frosty aloofness, and her husband's defensiveness as he confronts another way of life (Marie Tousignant and Frank Pearlman) . . . the heavy exaggerated Russian accents of Bill Fedorshik and Pamela Parker-Visconage . . . Trix Whitehall as the inebriated actress crawling under the table to retrieve the bottle . . .

Kudos to director Kevin Kneisley for giving us such a relaxed evening and to Ginny Zanner, producer, who managed to find the 1930s couch and costumes, adding to our awareness of the time period.

The play runs through October 31 on Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. with a special matinee Sunday, October 18 at 2 p.m. Enjoy!

A Fabulous Fiftieth

When the centennial for Greenbelt rolls around, the events of this last weekend will be a hard act to follow. Yet whoever takes on the task in 2037 will have the perfect model. We only doubt that it's possible once again to have the perfect team.

Did anyone have a complaint during the whole 50th anniversary Homecoming Weekend? We didn't hear one. We saw only smiles, heard only joyful exclamations. From the Friday evening parade to the Youth Center, the Lions Club's buffet hosting all comers and the sock hop, to the heart-warming opening ceremony for the Greenbelt Museum; from the gathering on the tennis courts at the Hilton, to the sumptuous banquet; from the ballroom dancing with the genuine big band that played just the right tunes, to Greenbelt Homes' tour of the pioneers' old homes; from the Legion's special luncheon for the pioneers to the Fire Department's feast — surely each part of the weekend's events made this a celebration to remember.

Even the weather gave us a break. The rain that threatened held off as dignitaries and citizens sat beneath the trees for the Museum's opening. And who would have thought we could stand around coatless at the outdoor reception on Saturday night?

Each person who contributed to this memorable occasion carried out all responsibilities with flair, dedication, and distinction. Every detail was in place. Every event flowed smoothly. It seemed almost a surfeit of pleasure.

That's why we ask: Fifty years from now, what can they possibly think to do?

Dowdy City

To the Editor:

Greenbelt is 50 years old, and in some respects she is a dowdy old lady! I hate to say this about my beloved city, but I feel constrained to tell the truth. My city is dowdy!

If all the regulations and ordinances were obeyed, she would be beautiful. Although there is a city ordinance against piling trash at curbside for pick-up; although it has been written about and spoken about ad infinitum; although people have been told and told to bag it, box it, or bundle it and put it next to their trash cans in their own yards and call 474-8004 for pick-up, it still goes at the entrance to the court, directly under the sign that says, "No Dumping." There is, apparently, no fine or punishment for disobeying regulations and ordinances, so they go on being disobeyed.

There is a great deal of plain sloppy dropping of carry-out containers — paper cups, plastic boxes and plates, paper napkins, etc., along the sides of the streets and in the gutters. One Friday evening, at dusk, I took my mile walk from Gardenway, up Hamilton, down to Northway and back. I had to stop in my own 39 Court and put one armload into my trash can, and by the time I got back from the other half, I had another armload. Saturday morning, about 9:30, I took another walk down the same territory and picked up another fresh armload of trash.

I can see no way of finding out who is dropping these things, but we might arrange to have clean-ups, done professionally. I grew up in small Mid-western towns, ranging in size from 10,000 to 20,000 population. Even prior to World War I (and I do mean I, not II), those little towns had street-cleaning crews. Before they had gasoline-powered vehicles to pull them, they had horses pulling roller brush-brooms about 10 feet wide which went along the streets twice a week and swept debris from the streets into piles in the gutters. This "broom" was followed by a wagon which had a couple of men assigned to it to sweep up the piles of debris and put them into the wagon and pick up the trash and papers between the street and the lawn-side of the sidewalk and put them in. This was even 75 to 80 years ago in the "uncivilized" Middle West, whereas here in the effete East, the trash just piles up unless some smart alec like me picks it up.

Can't we afford street-sweeping brooms and employed trash pickers in this enlightened age?

Greenbelt is not only dowdy. She is also dangerous. For all of the signs in Roosevelt Center which say "No Bicycle Riding in the Center," the elderly and stiff-jointed, like me, and handicapped must jump out of the way or be knocked down by bicycles zooming around the trees and through the center.

I suggest a small fine for people putting trash at the Court entrances and another small fine for bicyclists in the Roosevelt Center. Even a $5 fine would be a deterrent. It should be possible without giving people a police record: goodness knows I don't want the little darlings to have a police record for almost knocking me down—though if I were to hit my head on something and be killed, they surely would have! Come on, folks. Let's be realistic and admit that even Greenbelters are not going to obey regulations and ordinances unless they are penalized for breaking them—and let's fix up some mild penalties and see what happens. Let's also hire street brooms and sweepers and bring the effete East up to the standards of the wild Middle West of 80 years ago.

Janet James

Bikers Least of Concerns

To the Editor:

Recently, in the News Review, information brought out at a city council meeting was printed which disturbed us greatly. It concerned bicyclists and some of the problems of their travels through the community.

The article stated that Councilmember Bram indicated "residents of Research Road were opposed to opening the gates because of the increased traffic this would attract." This statement refers to a request by a resident to have the gates open 24 hours a day.

If I may speak for those of us that live closest to the farm gate, the bicyclists are the least of our concerns. The minute that gate closes in the evening and all weekend, the citizens of Greenbelt turn out in large numbers to stroll, run, bird watch, sight-see, and, yes, even bicycle down Research Rd. into the farm. Many have small children in tow to see the new calves in the pasture. Many elderly citizens use the route for vigorous exercise, walking down, then back up the hill. All of this happens without fear of the racing commuter traffic that controls the road from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays. That gate is closed for good reason. It is not a public road and was not intended to be used for through traffic.

The traffic at rush hour is so intense that we recently asked the Greenbelt Police for assistance in enforcing the speed limit of 25 mph. We appreciate their assistance. Since the onset of construction of "malfunction junction" at Kenilworth and Greenbelt Rd., an increasing number of drivers are using Greenbelt as a shortcut to avoid the intersection. Research Rd. is one of the shortcuts. Perhaps now you can see why bicyclists are not our concern so much as the impatient commuter.

Please, contact the bicycle clubs and work with them to curb the excesses of some of the less considerate bicyclists, but don't trade 150 lbs of bike and human for 3000 lbs. of machinery barreling down Research Rd. towards the citizens of Greenbelt 24 hours a day. We like our "dead end" street and, judging from the pedestrian traffic, so do a lot of other Greenbelters.

And More Thanks

Dear Friends—

I want to convey to the many, many officials, town employees, associations, and residents of Greenbelt my very deep appreciation for the planning and work which made the Fiftieth Anniversary celebration an unqualified success. It was well conceived, prepared with detailed care, offered to the hundreds of "pioneers" and newer families, too, with heart-warming devotion.

For those of us with gray hair and rich memories of the early Greenbelt years, it was a major event. We came from Florida and California and Maine — and from close to home also — and had the chance to talk with friends and neighbors not seen for thirty or forty years. It was reassuring to find that Greenbelt is still the beautiful city and parkland we remembered, and that the people still care.

Bless you all — and again, thanks.

Donald H. Cooper

Delightful

Citizens of Greenbelt:

I had the unique privilege and pleasure to participate in most of the events during your 50th Anniversary weekend. It was also a most warming and delightful experience to meet, hear from and converse with the original settlers and Greenbelters. Thank you for giving me the honor to share your weekend. The citizens, responsible community organizers and officials are to be congratulated for this memorial occasion. It gives evidence of the town's special character, and that "Greenbelt is Still Great."

May the ideals of the City of Greenbelt and the dream of a Greenbelt Museum, which are now realities, remain forever and benefit generations to come.

Leo Green

Flawed City Surveys

To the Editor:

I wish someone would explain to me why the city continues to conduct surveys that are so flawed that the results have little if any significance. Worst, the findings are presented and used as if they are valid estimates of the view of the population of the city (see the 9/24/87 issue of the News Review).

I was a statistician with the Federal Government for over 30 years, and worked on a number of sample surveys, some national in scope. Large amounts of funds and time were spent on sampling design and selecting the sample. This was to insure that the estimates derived from the survey were significant, and sampling errors measurable. In contrast, the city surveys appear to have no sampling plan, or a deficient one at best.

The faults in the sample obtained by the recent city survey are numerous, and make the results almost useless. For one, the sample is self-selected, and is not representative of the population of the city or any segment of that population. Even more of a problem is the fact that most of the self-selection came from those who voted in the election. For this reason, it is not possible to arrive at an estimate that relates to the city population for any of the questions on the survey questionnaire. Any survey that depends on self selection for its sample is basically wrong and a waste of time and money.

I also have problems with the questionnaire. The wording of questions can influence the answers received. In well-conducted surveys, questions are field tested to insure that they are understood, and that answers mean what they say and are consistent when answered more than once by the same person. The trouble my wife and I had trying to answer some of the questions, would indicate that the questions were designed by someone with little experience in the wording of survey questions, and that they were not field tested.

I have problems with the two questions presented in the News Review regarding the Greenbelt Road/Kenilworth Avenue (GR/KA) interchange. There is no indication of how many of the 500 who answered these questions had ever driven through that intersection. I suspect that a large proportion of the answers were not based on experience, but on what they read in the newspaper, all of it negative. It would have been a simple matter to first ask the question, "Have you within the past two weeks driven past the GR/KA interchange?" If "Yes" answer the next two questions. This would limit the answers to those who had experience with the intersection.

If the city can not afford the expense of getting experienced consultation for these surveys, it should try and get some volunteer consultation, or contact the University of Maryland for assistance. If all of these efforts fail, rather than do an inadequate job on the survey, it should get out of the business of doing surveys, and save the time and money.

the number of pets per household and/or adding to the regulations guidelines for the member to use in choosing the type and size animal suitable for the yard areas found in GHI homes.

The board did not appear eager to take this matter on at this meeting but referred the question to the Member and Community Relations Committee for recommendations.

Other Items

The board voted unanimously to accede to a request from the National Cooperative Business Association that GHI support legislation which would consolidate the 12 District Banks for Cooperatives and the Central Bank for Cooperatives (all part of the Farm Credit System) into one Bank for Cooperatives. According to the information provided by the NCBA, such a bank could make credit available to agriculture and rural utility members at more competitive rates.

The board voted to set its meetings in the last two months of the year on the first and third Thursdays in order to avoid the holidays. The meetings will be on November 5 and 19 and on December 3 and 17.

Soccer Update

by Jane Cosner

On Saturday, September 26 the four Greenbelt soccer teams played their second games of the season and all four teams were victorious.

Greenbelt No. 1 beat Beltsville 4-0. Michael Schultz and Andy Bender provided their team with excellent defensive play, once again holding their opponent to a zero score.

Greenbelt No. 2 fought hard to bring home their 2-0 win over a tough New Carrollton team. Both Eric Nudo and Danny Hamlin had an exceptional game.

1978/79 beat Lewisdale 2-1. Stephanie King gets special mention for her incredible energy on offense and the combination of Jeff Timer, Michael Todd and Robbie Artman on defense was simply awesome.

Team effort played a strong role in the 1976/77's 1-0 win over Lanham. During the entire game, Lanham had only one successful run through Greenbelt's defense and made a shot that was sure to go into our goal, when Greg Hunanian appeared from nowhere to clear the ball away. For this tremendous save, he deserves our special mention of the week.

GREENBELT LIONS CLUB

The Greenbelt Lions Club was most grateful for the opportunity to host the reception following Greenbelt's 50th Anniversary Homecoming Weekend's Opening Ceremonies. In a small way, it afforded the Lions Club a chance to say "Thank You!!!" to all Greenbelt residents for their support of the club's fund-raising activities which help those less fortunate in our city and county.

Friday night's reception would not have been the success that it was had it not been for the support and assistance of the following organizations. To them, we extend our heartfelt thanks!

Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative, Safeway, Superfresh, Raulins Bakery, Mid-Atlantic Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Giant Food, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and the Greenbelt Recreation Department Staff.

COUNCIL

the event the Greenbelt line was not built. Now that Metro is proceeding with the first phase of constructing the Greenbelt station, it has asked for this land. In the original arrangement with the Department of the Interior, the city authorized a deed to revert the land back to the federal government (Interior and Government Services Administration) which would then formally sell the land to Metro. However, the city has recently been informed that it has the option of exchanging the land with Metro for an equivalent tract. At a work session with Metro officials held on September 19, the Metro representatives expressed opposition to such a land exchange, arguing that it would take longer to carry out and be costlier to Metro; they suggested also that there was no assurance a land exchange could go through.

In view of this opposing pressure, the city has been bargaining with Metro for an equivalent compensation to replace the land exchange. Metro representative Gerald Gough, who is also a resident of Greenbelt and a former city council member, appeared to tell the council that Metro would give the city partial authority over the station landscaping; Metro would also support Greenbelt's annexation of the approximately seventy-acre maintenance and storage yard to be built as part of the station.

Though generally sympathetic with Gough's presentation, council members expressed some unhappiness with the proposed arrangements. White, particularly, considered the offer of land annexation to be a "gimmick" and said "Let's face it—the city is losing those two acres." Gough replied "We (Metro) are at a point where we can't give any more," but stressed that Metro would cooperate with Greenbelt in matters such as lessening the visual and auditory impact of the station on the adjacent areas; he offered to bring out Metro's landscaping architect for consultation with city officials.

After Gough answered further questions about details of the yard operations, security and safety—the latter issue in reference to the dangers posed by the 750-volt third rail on the Metro tracks—mayor Gil Weidenfeld stated "I feel we should work closely with Metro (and) we expect (in return) to get cooperation from Metro in terms of annexation of the land." At the same time he favored delaying the transaction until further discussions were carried out, to clarify the issues involved.

Other Meeting Items

- The deed for ten acres of parkland, adjacent to Greenbelt Lake's south side, was presented to council by a representative of the Milton Co., developers of Parcel 15. Putens complimented the representative for a "very fair" interaction with the city.

- PRAB has presented a "concept plan" to council for "limited development" of Schrom Hills Park.

- Ruth Kastner urged measures be taken to increase voter participation in city elections, pointing out that only 10% of eligible voters actually voted this year.

- Keith Chernikoff requested easier access to city briefing materials by candidates in city elections.

- The status of worker safety in city departments came under scrutiny, with Isaacs and Putens expressing concern about a reported rise in number of accidents.

- In response to Bram's question if anything could be done to control the "great deal of truck traffic on Crescent Road Giese said that state motor vehicle regulations do not permit the total banning of trucks, but that weight limits can be established.

Boy Scout Troop 1253

Meets for Fun at SHL

by John Holloman

On Saturday September 12, at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, Conrad Chang, Willie Poole, Ken Quelette and Steven Williams ceremoniously crossed the bridge to Scouting and were inducted as Scouts and members of BSA Troop 1253. Participating in the induction were Troop members Garth Wells, Mike Belle, T.J. Torillo, Robert Brown, Salva Holloman, Scouting Coordinator and John Holloman, Scoutmaster.

During Troop night, the Scouts of Troop 1253 welcomed new members Conrad, Ken, Willie and Steven and in Troop 1253 tradition "drummed" each new member to the advancement board to install his name tag on the Scouting Trail in the appropriate place of honor. All new members joined the Cobra Patrol and were awarded their patrol patches.

At Join Scouting Night on Thursday October 1, Troop 1253 had a display and registration table at the Springhill Lake Elementary School. Fletcher Hirom was welcomed as the newest member to join the World Brotherhood of Scouting.

The Troop campout at Kings Dominion was well attended, as Garth Wells, T.J. Torillo, Mike Belle, Ken Quellette, Conrad Chang, Eric Piegols, Michael Baumgartner and leaders, Wells, Brown and Holloman participated in this annual Troop 1253 activity. Rain most of the day on Saturday did not keep anyone from riding the many rides or participating in the park activities as they "closed up the park." Saturday night was very cold and a heavy frost made the boys thankful for being prepared. Kings Dominion '87 was really an exciting and fun adventure.

For information on joining please contact John Holloman, Scoutmaster at 937-3543. Scouting is open to any boy who has completed 5th grade or is 11-18 years old. The troop camps, hikes, canoes, swims, sails, rafts, cooks and enjoys and has fun in the outdoors.

City's 50th Is Entered

In Congressional Record

Greenbelt's 50th anniversary has been conspicuous throughout the county, the state, and the region. But it has also received recognition in the Congressional Record, the permanent document recording the proceedings and debates of the current Congressional term. On July 14 Maryland Senator Paul Sarbanes took note of the anniversary by inserting into the publication a Washington Post article by Eugene L. Meyer that was printed on May 4, "City of the Future Recalls its Past."

In introductory remarks, Sarbanes described the careful planning that had gone into creating Greenbelt and the two other Greenbelt cities in 1937, under the authority of the Emergency Relief Appropriations Act. He referred to the town's "original beauty" in its art deco style, noting especially the Center School.

"The deep devotion of Greenbelt's residents to their community is proof that the experiment

Support Group for People

With Eating Disorders

Dr. Jim Gormally, a psychologist specializing in eating disorders, will conduct educational/support group sessions on eating disorders on the fourth Saturday of each month, starting October 24. The meetings will be from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Washington Adventist Hospital's Cafeteria, 7600 Carroll Avenue, Takoma Park, and they are free. The meetings are for sufferers of eating disorders and for people who just want to learn more about this condition. There will be time for questions and discussion each session. For more information call 891-5716.

has worked," Sarbanes statement concludes.

Sarbanes rode in the Greenbelt Labor Day parade this year, on the occasion of the 50th anniversary. Probably he saw the city's float which represented the art deco has relief above the door of the Center School, as well as the three generations of the Barcus family who collectively confirm "50 Years in Greenbelt."

APB Recommends Against Magnolia Farms Rezoning

by Sid Kastner

At its meeting on Wednesday, September 16, the Advisory Planning Board (APB) of the City of Greenbelt considered two items of greatly different scope; one was an addition of a canopy to the site plan of the large Commerce Center building on Greenbelt Road at Hanover Parkway, while the other was the much larger question of a proposed rezoning of the Magnolia Farms property situated on Good Luck Road at the southern end of Hanover Parkway.

The Magnolia Farms property consists of 56 acres with a small frontage on Good Luck Road, bounded on the north by Greenbrook residential development and on the east by Doctor's Hospital. Hanover Parkway when extended south will run through the middle of the property. It is presently zoned R-R (rural residential). The developers are requesting rezoning of the 26 acre tract south of Hanover Parkway to C-O (commercial office) and for the 30 acre tract north of Hanover to C-O and R-55 (higher-density residential). A combination of "mid-rise" and townhouse office buildings totalling over 450,000 square feet would be built on the C-O land while 170 single-family units would be built on the R-55 property.

About eight representatives of the developer, Mark Vogel, and an associated building firm, appeared to present their case. Leslie Moore, while acknowledging that previous zoning requests for this property have earlier been turned down by the District Council, argued that "zoning changes are significant" in the area in question because of the presence of nearby operations such as Doctor's Hospital and a Bible school. She said that the proposed rezoning would be a "mixed-use concept" compatible with a transition between Greenway Center and the hospital and church at the intersection; and that esthetic impact on nearby communities could be minimized by twenty-five foot buffer strips, berms and other screening.

The rezoning proposal ran into staff questioning by APB members almost from the start. Gary Kohn expressed disappointment that though the developer's representatives had met two months earlier with individual members "You've made no effort to comply with our expressed concerns." They disputed this, stating that "We've had five different plans... that we've revised" and noted that the projected commercial buildings on the site were townhouse offices (rather than high-rise office buildings). However, several other negative points were brought up by APB members. J. Davis and Bobbi McCarthy objected to the proposed screening of the commercial area as insufficient, with the latter commenting that the displayed site design "is basically an asphalt jungle - it'll end up looking like the Greenway Center." Bill Wilkerson called it "really a change in the area Master Plan," which presently prescribes a transition from the Greenway commercial area through multifamily residences (e.g. Greenbriar) and townhouses (e.g. Glen Ora) to single-family residences at the southern end of Hanover Parkway. The question of increased automobile traffic was also raised by Davis, to which Moore replied "Traffic is not a problem," citing the developers' proposed addition of a second left-turn lane from Hanover onto Greenbelt Road. This did not satisfy Davis who responded "If you lived here, you wouldn't say that."

A representative of the building firm associated with Mark Vogel gave a slide show of the larger luxury-type house proposed for the R-55 tract, prompting some APB members to ask whether the firm was interested in putting single-family homes on all 56 acres of the property. The answer was essentially "No," the builder's representative saying that "a quality commercial area (was required to) give us an economic base."

Chairman Don Volk and board member John Churchill agreed with Kohn's negative assessment of the C-O rezoning request; the former said "We need more single-family housing here (and) traffic access is not good (to the property in question)," while Churchill expressed the view that "Your plans are absurd in terms of density." After several residents attending the meeting also expressed opposition to the proposal a vote of the board resulted in a unanimous "No", constituting a negative recommendation to the City Council.

Commerce Center addition

City Planner Celia Wilson described a canopy requested by the Commerce Center owners to cover a projected banking operation on the north side of the building. The metal and glass canopy would extend out 27 feet from the side of the building and be 23 feet wide. An associated request is for signage along the face of the canopy. The structure itself did not encounter much opposition from board members, except for the issue of present and future screening. Joyce Chestnut noted that the small grove of trees presently providing screening there "are in a bad way, and may not last." Davis suggested the existing landscaped berm would not conceal much of the canopy supports. To the question "Can the landscape screening be (included as) a condition in the covenant, the developer's representative replied in the affirmative.

Signage was a different matter, with the APB members taking a cautious stance. The developer's representative said that the prospective bank "is willing to limit its signage to what's requested on the canopy", arguing that other office structures now built in Greenbelt (the Oxford building, etc.) have taken liberties with signage. A question by Davis on whether the bank tenant "would be willing to put in writing that they wouldn't ask for more signage later" did not appear to re-

Play About AIDS At UM Theater

University Theatre at the University of Maryland will present "As Is," William M. Hoffman's award-winning play about AIDS. Performances will run October 20-24 and 27-31 at 8 p.m., and October 25 and November 1 at 2 p.m. in the Rudolph E. Pugliese Theatre. Audience members are invited to join campus leaders and the production staff for a discussion after each performance. Both the performance and discussion on October 27 will be sign interpreted.

"As Is" is a story about AIDS' effect on two men, their friends and family, but in the words of the playwright, the play is not about a disease as much as it is about "loyalty, courage and love."

Seating is very limited and available on a first-come, first-served basis by mail order or in person at the Tawes Theatre Box Office. For ticket prices and information call 454-2201 (voice and TDD) weekdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All proceeds will be donated to Columbia Light-house for the Blind and the Greenbelt Museum. The race will commence rain or shine.

For more information, call Steve Williams or Linda Brugger at 345-9730.

Volunteers Needed

The Mental Health Association's "You're in Charge" program needs mature, caring persons who love children to work with their Careline. No experience or training necessary. Anyone who has a few hours each week between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. to call "our kids" to assure their safe arrival home from school, is desperately needed. Calls must be done from the Mental Health Association's Riverdale office.

No more children can be registered unless there are the volunteers to call them. Please call at 577-3140 for an application or call for an appointment to come by the office.

ERHS To Hold Program On Available Activities

The Eleanor Roosevelt High School PTSA, in cooperation with the Student Government Association and the Guidance Department, is sponsoring a program on services and extracurricular activities available to students. All students in grades 9-12 and their parents can benefit from this session that will include a discussion of how students may utilize guidance services, presentations from outside services that provide counseling, tutoring, and other programs and information about extracurricular activities and clubs in the school and their costs, time requirements, and application procedures. Experts will be on hand to provide answers and suggestions about ways to make this school year both successful and enjoyable. The program will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 20, in the school's Media Center.

Older Women's League Chapter to Form in Area

The Commission for Women and the Department of Aging have joined together to help organize a Prince Georges County Chapter of Older Women's League (OWL).

OWL is a national advocacy group for midlife and older women that focuses on such issues as private pensions, health insurance, respite care, age and sex discrimination, etc.

A membership meeting will be held Saturday, October 24, and will feature Mary Jones, an OWL national board member, as guest speaker. Registration begins at 10 a.m., followed by the meeting at 10:30 a.m. in Rooms 133 and 135 of Bladen Hall at Prince Georges Community College.

For further information, call the Prince Georges County Commission for Women office at 952-3383.

Most Beautiful Youth Nominations Sought

Has anyone met a youth who thinks Prince Georges County (and Maryland) is the best and tries to make it even more so? Perhaps it was a neighbor, a babysitter, a candy-striper, or a scout. A youthful "unsung hero" of today represents the future of the County.

The County Executive's Office of Community and Ethnic Affairs is looking for Prince Georges County's most beautiful youth. Everyone between 16 and 21 years of age who promotes the pride and progress of the County is eligible.

As part of the State-wide "Maryland You Are Beautiful" campaign each of Maryland's 23 counties will choose one citizen to represent it at a special Governor's reception in Annapolis.

Make nominations by November 10. Nominators must be over 21 years of age. For an application call 952-4666.

Greenbelt's 50th Anniv. Receives Publicity in Area

The 50th Anniversary received more publicity than many Greenbelters may have realized. The Baltimore Sun, October 11, carried a large, illustrated story featuring the birth of the city as a model New Town, offspring of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, and as a town that has retained its sense of community despite problems created by increased population and traffic and the urban sprawl of Washington.

A week ago the Associated Press released a long story on the "green town" of the New Deal.

TV coverage gave the Golden Anniversary considerable local publicity, resulting in a noticeable influx of visitors driving through the center of the city to see the planned community for themselves.

CARES

Director Carol Leventhal met with an Advocates for Youth subcommittee in Baltimore, in order to write recommendations for prevention programs funded through the Juvenile Services Agency. The AYJ is developing an advisory statement regarding the JSA as part of the ongoing examination of the agency and its mission.

Leventhal attended a seminar on the social status of children held at the University of Maryland and co-sponsored by the Early Childhood Education Unit at the University and the Office of Children and Youth. At issue were areas of public policy which affect children and family life, and how researchers can impact upon those policies.

"To Your Smile"

Why must one missing tooth be replaced?

The teeth are part of a well balanced mechanism for chewing and speaking. Each tooth supports and helps maintain the proper function and health of the adjacent and opposing teeth.

When even just one tooth is lost and not replaced, the other teeth tilt and move out of place. Spaces are created where food debris and bacteria can collect, leading to new decay and gum disease. The extra stress placed on the remaining teeth causes further drifting plus weakening of the bone. If allowed to continue, additional teeth may needlessly be lost.

There are various ways of replacing one or more missing teeth, among which are bridges and partial dentures. Each situation must be evaluated on an individual basis to determine the proper method to restore proper form and function.

Police Blotter

Based on Information
Released by the
Greenbelt Police Department

A female apartment resident in the 6100 block of Breezewood Drive, who exchanged words with the operator of a car outside her apartment about the blowing of a car horn about 3 p.m. October 3 was assaulted by the horn blower and her boyfriend, who came to the woman's apartment, kicked and shattered a sliding glass door, entered the apartment and assaulted the victim, then fled. Within hours Officer Tom Keifline arrested two suspects. A 23-year-old Greenbelt man was charged with breaking and entering and battery and a 20-year-old College Park woman was charged with malicious destruction of property. A District Court Commissioner released them on personal recognizance.

Officer Carolyn McLean, investigating a breaking and entering October 3 at a home in the 24 Court of Ridge Road, arrested and charged an 11-year-old Greenbelt girl in the break-in. The same girl, together with a 15-year-old Greenbelt girl, were also charged the same day with breaking into a home in the 12 Court of Plateau Place.

Residents arriving home about 3 p.m., October 8 in the 56 Court of Crescent Road found their home had been entered by breaking a window. They found the intruder, a 28-year-old D.C. woman, still inside. They were able to prevent her escape and hold her there for Officer Steven Keller, who made the arrest. The suspect, charged with breaking and entering, was held on $800 bond.

A 22-year-old man of no fixed address was arrested about 8:30 p.m., October 2 at the Candy Cane city park opposite Roosevelt Center for consuming an alcoholic beverage in public. When arrested he was found in possession of PCP. Charged with the alcoholic beverage violation and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (PCP), he was released on personal recognizance by a District Court Commissioner.

A security guard at Marshall's Department Store in Beltway Plaza turned a 15-year-old male juvenile over to Officers Carolyn McLean and Tom Keifline for shoplifting. The juvenile was charged with the theft and released to his aunt. A short time later the officers returned to Marshall's, where the security guard had himself been caught taking merchandise valued at almost $600 and putting it in his car. The officers arrested the guard, a 28-year-old Baltimore man. A District Court Commissioner released him on personal recognizance.

A resident walking in the 7900 block of Mandan Road at 12:45 p.m., October 5 saw someone throw a rock through the window of a ground floor apartment and flee. The suspect was described as a black male, 17 years, 5'9", thin build, wearing black sweat pants and a black shirt with "Go Go" on the back and "84" on the front.

An apartment in the 6000 block of Cherrywood Court was entered October 3 through an unlocked door. A portable black and white television was stolen.

On October 5 an apartment in the 6000 block of Springhill Drive was entered. Money and a pair of glasses were stolen. There was no evidence of forced entry.

An apartment in the 100 block of Westway was entered October 8 by unknown means. Electronic
